IT IS UNUSUAL

in the publishing world to publish two novels in January and to continue advertising them in trade journals so long afterward; but part of the CLODE idea is in keeping books alive. Both KARL GRIER, by Louis Tracy, and THE ARNCLIFFE PUZZLE, by Gordon Holmes, are worth being brought to the attention of your customers.

They are splendid reading for any season, and therefore are particularly good for increasing your summer sales.

THE LATE TENANT

Gordon Holmes' new story will be published in September.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have just brought out in their unique First Folio Shakespeare edition, "Twelfth Night, or, What You Will!"

THE AUTHORS AND NEWSPAPERS ASSOCIATION, New York City, have just ready their second novel, "The Man Between," by Amelia E. Barr. Of this book, as of their first book, "A Rock in the Baltic," by Robert Barr, only a special edition will be made exclusively for their selling agents—one in each city.

THE G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY will publish in August, on the completion of its run as a serial in The Critic, "The Lion and the Mouse," by Charles Klein, author of "The Music Master," etc. The advance orders for the novel are reported to be extraordinarily large, practically the whole of the first edition being already disposed of. This is largely due, of course, to the success of the play. Next season no fewer than four dramatic companies will be presenting the piece in different parts of the United States, and it will probably run another year in New York. The novelization has been made by Charles Klein and Arthur Hornblow, and the book will be illustrated with wash drawings by Stuart Travis.

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co. have in preparation a book entitled "Proofs of Life After Death," a collation, by Robert J. Thompson, of opinions of eminent scientists as to what in their minds are the strongest reasons, outside of theology, of the proofs of immortality. Among those quoted are the late Professor Shaler, Professor S. P. Langley, Professor S. Newcomb, Sir Oliver Lodge, Professor Charles Richet, Sir William Crookes, Professor William James, Professor C. Lombroso, Professor Camille Flammarion, Professor Brunot, Professor Th. Flournoy, Professor Hyslop, and many others. They have also in preparation a book entitled "The Historical Bases of Religions—Primitive, Babylonian and Jewish," by Hiram Chellis Brown. It is a comprehensive survey of evolution of the religious conception from primitive man to Christianity, written from the standpoint of higher criticism. The manuscript has been read and stamped with approval by scholars in this field.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish this month a novel entitled "The Shock of Battle," by Patrick Vaux, who bases a thrilling story upon an imaginary war between Great Britain and Germany, shortly after the opening of the Panama Canal; "The Connecticut River, and the Valley of the Connecticut, three hundred and fifty miles from mountain to sea," by Edwin M. Bacon, a new volume in the Historic Rivers Series, with about 100 illustrations; "The Muscles of the Eye," by Dr. Lucien Howe, an important work, in two volumes, dealing exhaustively with the surgical anatomy and the pathology of the muscles of the eye, the various methods of testing the eyes and the treatment of so-called eye strain, etc., with upwards of 300 illustrations and a bibliography of over 2400 articles carefully classified; "The Interpretation of Nature," by Dr. C. Lloyd Morgan, a philosophical treatise in which the author aims to show that "a belief in purpose as the causal reality of which nature is an expression is not inconsistent with a full and wholehearted acceptance of the explanations of naturalism within their appropriate sphere"; also, in the Crown Theological Library, a work on "Hebrew Religion to the Establishment of Judaism Under Ezra," by the Rev. William E. Addis, a historical study of the religion of the Jews from the earliest times on well into the fourth century.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☜

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Poel, W:, comp. Lilies that fester: a tragedy adapted from the play "Arden of Faversham." [Also] Love's constancy: an episode in the play of "Edward the third" arranged in one act. N. Y., Brentano's, 1906. 7+72+73-109 p. D. (Playhouse ser.) cl., $1 net.
William Poel, who arranged the two plays here given, is Director of the Elizabethan Stage Society. In his introduction he says: "These two plays are modified versions of older ones, and the second of them is in all probability a composition by Shakespeare. It originally formed a part of the early chronicle play, 'Edward the Third,' a drama which can be said to have small dramatic or poetic merit beyond the love-scene supplied by Shakespeare. For this reason it is now separated from the rest of the chronicle so as to form a play complete in itself, and it has been given besides an independent title. The first play is also renamed because it has been almost entirely reconstructed to allow of its being acted on the modern stage. Both dramas deal with the subject of unlawful love."

The author confines himself entirely to the private life of Jerome Bonaparte, Napoleon's youngest brother, the husband of Miss Elizabeth Patterson—and the King of Westphalia. He tells of his follies and vices, his extravagance and intrigues. He aims to tell the truth without bitterness, and succeeds in presenting a striking portrait of a man in whose life little was hidden. By the author of "The courtships of Catherine the Great."

Spargo, J: Socialism: a summary and interpretation of socialistic principles. N. Y., Macmillan, 1906. [Je.] c. 16+257 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author of "The bitter cry of the children" and "The socialists; who they are and what they stand for" purposes to state in popular language what socialism really means and what it does not mean. He has spent many years in the propaganda of socialism on two continents as lecturer to all classes of audiences. Gives much biographical matter relating to Owen, Marx and others identified with socialism. He endeavors "to state socialism constructively without utopian romanticism." Appendix gives National Platform of the Socialist Party of America as adopted by the Chicago Convention in 1904.

The field work upon wiiich this report is based formed a part of a detailed investigation of the geology and water resources of Long Island conducted by Mr. M. L. Fuller, chief of the eastern section of the divison of hydrology, assisted by Mr. Veatch, to whom was given the immediate supervision of problems relating to underground waters. The paper deals with an area in which the problems relating to underground waters are of great importance, especially as they affect city and town supplies. Great interest is manifested in such waters throughout the area, and the report is the result of unusually detailed work.

Viljoen, Benjamin Johannis, General. An exiled general, by Ben J. Viljoen, general late Boer forces, South Africa. [2 pts. in 1 v.] St. Louis, Mo., A. Noble Printing Co., 1906. c. 312 p. il. por. D. cl., $1.50.

General Viljoen was captured by the British towards the end of the Boer War and exiled to St. Helena. While there he wrote the history of the disastrous war which forms pt. 1 of the book. It is now revised since he is living in New Mexico and needs not fear the censure of his British captors. The second part treats of the future of the Boer nation and gives a quiet estimate of the facts of the war and of the underlying causes which brought it about. The book is published wholly in the interest of destitute Boers.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 7, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE LONDON TIMES BOOK CLUB.

A LONDON syndicate operating under the cover of an organization named the Times Book Club, ostensibly a circulating library scheme backed by The Times, has been playing havoc with the book business in London for the past month or two, and is now preparing to invade Scotland on the same lines. The plan of the syndicate seems to be first to stimulate the circulation of The Times by supplying books through a circulating library scheme to bona fide yearly subscribers to The Times, which obtains the books from publishers at favorable rates. Having fulfilled their function in this direction, the syndicate recoups itself by throwing the books on the market a few months after publication on the pretext that as they have been used by the members of the club they have become second-hand or shelf-worn. This would be bad enough if the books so offered were restricted to those actually circulated by the club; but it seems that the syndicate has also dragged the market for remainders in all quarters in order to make as big a showing as possible at its so-called "rubbish sale," at which several weeks ago 600,000 books, good, bad and indifferent, were slaughtered at prices ranging from five pence upwards. The result was a temporary paralysis of not only the booktrade, but also of the circulating library trade, as both the booksellers and the libraries in and near London withheld their orders for new books until they might learn how their interests would be protected in the future.

The Publishers' Association of Great Britain, realizing that the course of The Times Book Club, if persisted in, would make bookselling practically impossible and publishing still less profitable, is seeking to enforce a six months' limit for the sale of second-hand net books. The principal libraries at once expressed their willingness to adhere to such a rule, but The Times Book Club declined, preferring to consider a book as second-hand "where it has been used by more than two subscribers, and when it is returned in such a state that it cannot be sold as a new book;" notwithstanding this assertion by "The Thunderer," the Times Book Club gives its published assurance that the copies sold by it will be "in every respect as good as new." While the Publishers' Association is further considering how to cope with this difficulty, Macmillan & Co., Ltd., alive to the danger, and intent upon guarding the interests of their constituents, have issued the following notice to the trade:

"Messrs. Macmillan & Co., Ltd., regret to find that copies of 'The Life of Lord Randolph Churchill,' which was published less than five months ago, are being offered for sale by the managers of The Times Book Club at a very great reduction from the published price.

"As the book is being advertised by The Times Book Club at the head of a list of 'remainders,' the publishers fear that an impression prevails that this work, which is one of the most important of their recent publications, has been 'sold off' at waste-paper price. As such an impression would be most damaging to them as publishers, Messrs. Macmillan & Co. wish it to be understood that this is not the case. The Times Book Club bought a considerable number of copies of this book at ordinary library rates. The copies now offered are presumably those which have been in use in the circulating library.

"In the absence of any agreement as to the time for which a bookseller must have had a copy of a net book in his possession before he can offer it at a reduced price as a 'bonâ fide remainder,' it is difficult to see how a publisher is to prevent a dealer from selling a book at less than it cost him to buy; but Messrs. Macmillan wish it to be understood that they have not been consenting parties to the transaction referred to above.

"Any retail bookseller having an account with Messrs. Macmillan who has bought a copy of 'Lord Randolph Churchill' from them, and finds himself unable to dispose of it in consequence of the Times advertisements, is invited to communicate with them."

The situation is a grave one for the English booktrade and should also be studied in advance by the American booktrade, as it is not unlikely that the scheme above described will find imitators in this country. As the London Bookseller, in commenting on the question, says: "Unless the publishers unite and put their foot down to prevent this unfair dealing, it is clear that no bookseller will be able to stock a new book of importance, if he is to be faced by the possibility, indeed it would seem the probability, of its being sold by the Times Book Club at remainder prices in the course of a few months. Such uncertainty makes immediate drastic action on the part of all the publishers imperative."

STATE OF PRINTING IN AMERICA IN THE 18TH CENTURY.

Charles Evans, Rogers Park, Chicago, Ill., has just brought out the third volume of his interesting "American Bibliography," covering the period from 1751 to 1764. This period, to quote from Mr. Evans's preface, "finds the art of printing, after one hundred and twenty-five years from its introduction, in 1639, finally established in all of the thirteen original States of the American Union; and it may be of interest to briefly summarize by whom the first presses were founded, and the times and places where the introduction of printing occurred in the several American Colonies. In chronological order this record is as follows: First, Massachusetts, at Cambridge, by Stephen Daye, in 1639; Second, Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, by William Bradford, in 1685; third, New York, at New York City, by William Bradford, in 1693; fourth, Connecticut, at New London, by Thomas Short, in 1709; fifth, Maryland, at Annapolis, by William Parks, in 1726; sixth, Rhode Island, at Newport, by James Franklin, in 1727; seventh, Virginia, at Williamsburgh, by William Parks, in 1730; eighth, South Carolina, at Charleston, by Eleazer Phillips, Jr., in 1732; ninth, North Carolina, at Newbern, by James Davis, in 1751; tenth, New Jersey, at Woodbridge, by James Parker, in 1755; eleventh, New Hampshire, at Portsmouth, by Daniel Fowle, in 1756; twelfth, Delaware, at Wilmington, by James Adams, in 1761; thirteenth, Georgia, at Savannah, by James Johnston, in 1762. How closely connected in interests the communities in each province were may be inferred from the fact that during the century and a quarter the printing press had been established in only twenty-three centres, of which Pennsylvania had six, Connecticut three; Massachusetts, Rhode Island and North Carolina two each, and the remaining provinces only the centre where printing was begun. How populous these communities were may be estimated from the statement of Ezra Stiles, in his sermon on Christian union, in 1760, that: 'Four thousand British planters settled in New England, and in one hundred and twenty years their posterity are increased to five thousand souls.'

"The introduction of printing during the eighteenth century was usually begun, or followed soon after, by the publication of a newspaper. Up to the close of the present volume about sixty newspapers had been established and continued for varying periods of publication. Of this number four were established in Connecticut, one in Delaware, one in Georgia, two in Maryland, eleven in Massachusetts, one in New Hampshire, thirteen in New York, three in North Carolina, fifteen in Pennsylvania, three in Rhode Island, four in South Carolina, and one in Virginia. Of all the colonies, New Jersey alone was without a newspaper, and, it may be added, without a common centre for one, for Woodbridge, where James Parker had established his press, was chosen as his birthplace, and not for its availability as a centre for publication. A phase of their publication, worthy of more extended notice, is the adaptability shown by the mothers and wives in assuming the duties of editorship of these journals when death or disaster overcame their husbands or sons. Such women as Cornelia Bradford, at Philadelphia; Catherine Zenger, at New York; Margaret Draper, at Boston; Anne Franklin and Ann Barber, at Newport; Sarah Goddard, at Providence; Mistress Watson, at Hartford; Anne Catharine Green, at Annapolis, and Elizabeth and Anne Timothy, at Charleston, illustrate the high type of colonial womanhood and the mutual interdependence of the family relations in pioneer times. While the trial of John Peter Zenger in New York, in 1735, has established the principle of the freedom of the press in that colony, the experiences of the Rev. Dr. William Smith in Pennsylvania, in 1758; of Daniel Fowle in Massachusetts, in 1754, and John Wilkes in London, in 1763, shows that the principle was not yet of universal application.

THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH COPYRIGHT ACT.

The Australian Commonwealth Copyright Act, 1905, which received the royal assent last month, is to be proclaimed and pass into law at once. "With some claims to rank as a Code," the London Academy says, "the Act undoubtedly marks an epoch in the history of Colonial Copyright. It effects, on the lines of Lord Monkswell's Literary and Artistic Copyright Bills, many notable reforms. Copyright includes the right of abridgment, dramatization and translation. As well as performing right in dramatic and musical works, a lecturing right is created as regards both sermons and lectures. The duration of artistic copyright is assimilated to that of literary copyright, thus establishing homogeneity, but, unfortunately, in the place of the proposed period of Lord Monkswell's Bills — the author's life and thirty years — the old and cumbrous term of life and seven years or forty-two years, whichever be the longer period, has been most unaccountably selected.

"Among other details . . . 'Magazine Copyright' endures for one year only instead of twenty-eight years, as under the Imperial Act of 1842, and the rights of proprietors are strictly limited to publication in their own periodicals. Translations, or abridgments, not the work of the author, must be so declared on the title-page, and after ten years the right of translation, unless exercised, lapses. Notices are made compulsory in the cases of the reservation of performing right in dramatic and musical works. The right of search and seizure is conferred in the case of pirated copies, and penalties provided may be recovered summarily. A simple system of registration is provided for the Commonwealth, but as in England, is only necessary before action brought.

"The Act . . . contains a 'manufacturing clause.' Primarily, its benefits are conferred upon books, etc., whether by British subjects or not, 'printed from type set up in Australia or plates made therefrom or from plates and negatives made in Australia in cases where type is not necessarily used'—an exception which seems to require elucidation. Publication, performance, or delivery must take place either simultaneously with or within fourteen days of first publication, etc., elsewhere. The integrity of Imperial Copyright, of the Berne Convention and International arrangements made by the Imperial Government is, however, sufficiently safeguarded by Part VI., Section 62, which admits literary, musical, dramatic or artistic works 'entitled to protection in Australia by virtue of any Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom' to the same protection as other works under the Act.

"Some doubts seem to be held as to the operation of this section, but it obviously includes all works embraced by the International Copyright Act, 1886, and all works simultaneously published in England with first publication elsewhere. The condition which is attached to this protection is 'registration under this part of the Act' and, presumably, the deposit under Sections 75 (1) and (2) of two copies of every book and one, or a photograph, of any work of art required from 'every person applying for registration.' The position of the United States is, therefore, unaffected by the Act, but remains exactly as before. Subject to simultaneous publication in the British Empire, American works can be protected in Australia in the same way as British works."

DUFFIELD & COMPANY.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made that the publishing house of Fox, Duffield & Company, from which Mr. R. K. Fox has retired, will hereafter be known as Duffield & Company.

This corporation, organized a little more than three years ago under the laws of the State of New York, has now some three hundred books in its catalogue, including titles acquired by the purchase of the business of Herbert S. Stone & Company, of Chicago. Pitts Duffield is president and treasurer of the company, Frederick A. Richardson is vice-president, and Kenneth G. Duffield secretary.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A. G. SEILER STILL IN BUSINESS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I take this means of notifying the trade that I have sold to M. A. Goldrich my branch store known as the New York University Book Store. Mr. Goldrich having printed on his stationery "Successor to A. G. Seiler" has led some dealers to infer that I have entirely sold out, which is not the case. I have sold only the above-mentioned branch in order to devote my energy to my main store and another store which I have recently purchased. Therefore I anticipate doing even a greater business with you than heretofore.

A. G. SEILER.

1222 AMSTERDAM AVE., NEW YORK, June 29, 1906.

UNPROFITABLE BOOKSELLING.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I was much pleased to see the article by Mr. Clark, of Boston, on "Unprofitable Bookselling" in the WEEKLY. I am in the business again as a matter of pride in my city, and to stay with my city, but I realize that there is no prospect of my making more than the living of a good bricklayer. The absolute folly of trying to maintain publishers' prices on new books in competition with $1.08 prices, I am aware of; yet to me it appears degrading to place myself in the position of a huckster crying, "Cheap! cheap! cheap! Buy my $1.50 books for $1.08! Walk up, gentlemen, trade with me, trade with me!" No, I cannot do it. Even now, here in a city that is in ruins, the shrill, unmanly screech of "cut-rates" is in the air. The book trade will never be one of decent remuneration until we all—bookseller and publisher alike—and I am both, conduct our business in a dignified manner.

I could go on with this subject for a week and then not exhaust my feeling of pity for a business that cannot show a prosperous dealer in New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, Baltimore, Buffalo, Philadelphia, San Francisco, or in any city in the Union. Some may think they are prosperous; but that is again more than pitiful, as their idea of prosperous business is peculiar. I defy the bookseller in any city in all this great country to state that his business is prosperous, and at the same time to state the number of his employees and the salary he pays them. I do not think there is any retail book house in the United States that pays a salary to the intelligent help that is required that would not be ashamed to see the salaries given as a whole—each individual salary paid in the house—published to the world. It is, I again say it, pitiful!

A. M. Robertson.

SIR WALTER SCOTT PROPHESIES LITTLE LIBRARY BOOKS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

Dear Sir: That Sir Walter Scott was book-wise beyond most mortals every one who reads his work must recognize, but it is only the bookman who can appreciate how great was his book wisdom. An example of it occurs in the opening phrases of the tenth chapter of "Rob Roy," where may be found a curious and interesting prophecy, or rather a legitimate inference as to the future of books, which has been fully justified by the facts. It is as follows:

"The library at Osbaldistone Hall was a gloomy room whose antique oaked shelves bent beneath the weight of the ponderous folios so dear to the seventeenth century, from which, under favor be it spoken, we have distilled matter for our quartos and octavos, and which, once more subjected to the alembic, may, should our sons be yet more frivolous than ourselves, be still further reduced into duodecimos and pamphlets."

Whether we are more frivolous than in Scott's time or no need not be discussed, but the tendency Sir Walter Scott foresaw has found ample expression in the various little libraries that have been so conspicuous in our bookstores of late years. Although miniature books have been an occasional fad with printers for more than a hundred years, (there occurs to me in this connection the "Thumb Bible," of which an example exists in the Boston Public Library, and of which I have the good fortune to possess another; and also the famous "Circle of the Sciences," published by John Newbery,) it is, I think, only in these later years that the tendency to the diminutive books which Sir Walter Scott foresaw has become more generally marked.

Charles Welsh.

Winthrop, Mass., June 23, 1906.

[It may interest our readers to read in connection with this, Scott's great contemporary, Napoleon I.'s ideas of libraries in little, as described by James Westfall Thompson, in his article "Napoleon as a Booklover," in the July Atlantic.—Ed. P. W.]

OBITUARY NOTES.

Andrew Varick Stout Anthony, artist, engraver and writer, died July 2, at the home of his son-in-law, Dr. Henry C. Perkins, at West Newton, Mass. Mr. Anthony was born in New York City in 1838. After his studies were completed he devoted himself to wood engraving, in which branch of art he became a leader. From 1866 to 1889 he had sole charge of the illustrated work issued by Ticknor & Fields and their successors, during which time he projected and superintended the quarto illustrated edition of Longfellow's works. He also edited for them Young Folks and Every Saturday. Since 1894 he was connected with the literary department of Harper & Brothers. Mr. Anthony was a frequent contributor to the magazines and many of his articles he illustrated himself. He was one of the foundation members of the New York Water Color Society and one of the founders of the St. Botolph Club of Boston.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Literary Digest has absorbed Public Opinion and will accordingly cover a larger field.

The Search Light, an excellent digest of the news of the week, has suspended publication.

Maxim Gorky will give his impressions of America in the midsummer issue of Appleton's Magazine.

The Studio for July contains in its American Section an article on the Rembrandt Tercentenary. Among the special inserts is a reproduction of Rembrandt's famous painting, "The Night Watch."

Appleton's Magazine has succeeded Appleton's Booklovers' Magazine, and with the July number its price has been lowered from twenty-five to fifteen cents the number. A year ago the Appletons bought the Booklovers' Magazine and assumed and paid all its obligations. The name Booklovers has been gradually allowed to vanish and that of Appleton's to increase.

H. G. Wells, the English novelist and author of "When the Sleeper Wakes," and other works of imaginative prophecy, has just completed a book which will be of interest to his American readers, as it deals with his impressions of life and customs in American communities. Mr. Wells has but recently returned to England from his visit to this country, where the material for the volume was accumulated. Serial rights have been secured by Harper's Weekly, and publication will begin with the issue of July 14, under the title of "The Future in America." Vernon Howe Bailey and E. V. Nadherny are the artists selected to illustrate Mr. Wells's striking work.

Katharine Lee Bates, head of the department of English literature at Wellesley College, sailed on the Arabic from Boston July 5 for Liverpool. By automobile she will tour the western counties of England from the lake country to Cornwall, accompanied by Katherine A. Coman, of the Wellesley Department of Economics. Miss Coman will take a number of photographs and Miss Bates undertakes this trip through one of the most interesting sections of England on commission to contribute a series of nine articles to the Chautauquan Magazine, entitled "A Reading Journey in Famous English Counties." The magazine series will appear as a part of "The Chautauqua Home Reading Course" for the year of English topics beginning in September.

BUSINESS NOTES.

COLDWATER, MICH.—F. J. Reed, bookseller, it is reported, is offering to compromise with his creditors.

DALLAS, TEX.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Ginn, Myers & Perry Book and Stationery Company.

DENVER, COLO.—H. C. Shields, bookseller, has sold out to D. L. Eddy.

MT. VERNON, MO.—T. J. Alexander, bookseller, has sold out to George Wilson.

OAKLAND, CAL.—Woods's Old Book Store has been taken over by Dewitt & Snelling.

RED OAK, IA.—Miss Lucille M. Ryan, not Lyon, as noted in our issue for June 1, has purchased an interest in the City Book Store, (John J. Shuey's,) and is now the managing partner.

ROCHESTER, N. H.—Ezra S. Smart, bookseller, has been succeded by T. W. Osgood.

WAYNE, NEB.—Felker & Jones, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE Milo'ske Boghandel, Odense, Denmark, has just brought out a second edition of Andreas Dolleris's "Danmarks Boghandlere," a biographical list of Danish booksellers, the first edition of which was brought out in 1893. The new edition contains the sketches of 534 booksellers, covering every detail of their personal history, including even that of their parents' and wives' relations, and of their children if employed in the book business. (382 p. 8°, 7.50 kr.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. have applied for membership in the Stationers' Board of Trade.

WERNER LAURIE, London, will publish shortly a volume of reminiscences entitled "My Friends the French," by Robert H. Sherard.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will bring out early in September the first and second volumes of the new and complete edition of Ibsen's works.

THE MERCHANTS' HELPS PUBLISHING CO., Delhi, N. Y., has published a suggestive little book entitled "Talks by an Old Storekeeper," by Frank Farrington, author of "Retail Advertising," etc.

THE AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION at its annual conference at Narragansett Pier, on July 4, formed a Library Copyright League to guard the interests of libraries in the importation of copyright books issued abroad.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in press a work by Dr. James Donaldson, entitled "Woman—her position and influence in ancient Greece and Rome and among the early Christians;" also, "Liberty, and Other Sermons," by the Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, Bishop of the Philippines.

THEODORE E. SCHULTE, Twenty-Third Street and Lexington Avenue, New York City, has published Dr. Madison C. Peters's recent sermons addressed to women on "The Sins of Smart Society." The topics dealt with include drinking, card-playing, extravagance and pleasure-seeking as a profession.

ROBERT GRIER COOKE is publishing "In the House of Her Friends," a story of life in college circles by an anonymous writer. This is not written from the point of view of the student. It gives the opinions of each person connected with the college, and includes many character drawings.

THE CENTURY CO. will issue in the autumn "The Chateaux of Touraine," with text by Maria Hornor Lansdale, pictures in color by Jules Guérin and photographs in tint. It will be a very handsome book and will be issued as a companion volume to "Italian Villas," by Mrs. Edith Wharton, illustrated by Maxfield Parrish.

LEMCKE & BUECHNER, 11 East Seventeenth Street, New York City, have made arrangements to publish W. Vietor's "Shakespeare's Pronunciation," consisting of two separate volumes—"A Shakespeare Phonology, with a Rime-Index to the Poems as a Pronouncing Vocabulary," and "A Shakespeare Reader in the Old Spelling, and with a Phonetic Transcription."

"THE JUNGLE" has made a record as a "best seller." It was published late in February with scarcely any advance sales, yet 85,000 copies have been printed to date. Five editions have been published in England, six in Canada and two in Australia. In addition to the list of languages into which it has been translated and in which it has been published, both Swedish and Danish have been added.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have added to their Mediæval Town Series a revised edition of Thomas Okey's book, "The Story of Paris," which originally appeared in 1904. The book has numerous drawings by Katherine Kimball and many reproductions of photographs and maps. The first part gives the "story" of Paris, the second is a sort of guide through the city, for the benefit of the inexperienced visitor.

"BILLY WHISKERS' FRIENDS," by Frances Trego Montgomery, author of "Billy Whiskers' Kids," etc., is to be published August 1 by Brewer-Barse & Co., Chicago, for whom the Reilly & Britton Co. are sole selling agents. The book is after the style of Mrs. Montgomery's other "Billy Whiskers" books, but more elaborately illustrated, having six full-page illustrations in colors and over fifty text pictures and ornamental designs in black-and-white.

THE MAYHEW PUBLISHING COMPANY, of Boston, will publish next month a humorous volume entitled "The Asbestos Society of Sinners," by Lawrence Daniel Fogg, a well known magazine writer and journalist. The book, which is dedicated to John Kendrick Bangs, is a newspaper man's account of a trip to Hades, where he interviewed "Boss" Tweed, Henry VIII., Sherlock Holmes, Shakespeare, Washington, Methusaleh, Adam, Eve, and Cain.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO. have in preparation two new books by George Cary Eggleston. One of these is a story of New York life, entitled "Blind Alleys," dealing not with the slums or with the city's exceptional population, but depicting the more typical and significant aspects of life in the great city and those who constitute its real population. The book is illustrated by E. Pollack. The other book, entitled "Jack Shelby," is for boys, and gives much of the author's own experiences and those of his brother, the late Edward Eggleston, in Clifty County, Ind., about sixty years ago.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish on the 12th inst. Margaret Deland's latest work, "The Awakening of Helena Richie," the story of the birth of a woman's soul, of her realization and renunciation of the past through the unconscious influence of a little child, which strikes deep into the foundations of human sympathy. The background of the story is peaceful old Chester, with its delightful and whimsical old Dr. Lavendar, Willy King, and other old acquaintances. They will publish at the same time the fourth volume in Mark Twain's Library of Humor, under the apt title, "A Little Nonsense." Among the contributors are: Bret Harte, C. D. Warner, R. J. Burdette, "Artemus Ward," J. K. Bangs, Henry A. Shute, Owen Wister, W. D. Howells, Guy Wetmore Carryl, George Ade, J. J. Roche, R. H. Munkittrick, "Bill Nye," S. E. Kiser, "Mr. Dooley," and others. Mark Twain himself is represented by three humorous stories.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS, in their Subscription Department, have in preparation a new issue of "The Works of James Fenimore Cooper," in thirty-three handsome volumes, to be entitled The Iroquois Edition. The edition will have a general introduction by William Crary Brownell, the well-known critic, in which is presented a critical estimate of the position secured by Cooper's writings in the literature of the United States and of the world. It will also include the story of Ned Myers, which does not find place in previous sets, and the full series of the original steel engravings by F. O. C. Darley, who was acknowledged to be the leading draftsman of his generation in connection with the earlier pioneer life of the country, and whose designs were accepted by Cooper himself as most thoroughly characteristic and fitting illustrations for the text of the famous romances. Together with these plates, have been included a series of reproductions in photogravure from designs specially prepared for Cooper's volumes by R. F. Zogbaum, J. T. Richards, H. Sandham, and others. Mr. Brownell's introduction, which was first published, in condensed form, in Scribner's Monthly for April this year, has been printed separately in a neat pamphlet. It has been accepted by critics generally as constituting the most discriminating and trustworthy estimate of the work of America's great romancer.

REILLY & BRITTON'S new illustrated catalogue for 1906 shows a large increase in their line. They announce twenty-four new publications for this year, which together with their previous list, makes their line remarkably attractive and strong. The big book in their forthcoming list is, of course, L. Frank Baum's "John Dough and the Cherub," already described by us. Other attractive books are "Annabel," a novel for young folks, by Suzanne Metcalf; "Sam Steele's Adventures on Land and Sea," by Captain Hug Fitzgerald, the first of a series of books for boys; "Aunt Jane's Nieces," by Edith Van Dyne, the initial volume of a new series of books for girls. Following the style of "The Land of Oz," but in miniature form, is a series of six books entitled The Twinkle Tales, all by Laura Bancroft. The titles are "Prairie-Dog Town," "Mr. Woodchuck," "Bandit Jim Crow," "Twinkle's Enchantment," "Sugar-Loaf Mountain" and "Prince Mud-Turtle." In a sense these are nature stories, and have been illustrated in colors by Maginal Enright. "Tony Tompkins—Lion Tamer," by Harriet Scott Barber, is a story of heart interest for those who love children. This is a gift book, sympathetically illustrated by Clyde J. Newman. "Sweethearts Always" is a dainty gift book containing poems of love compiled and arranged by Janet Madison. Each poem is enclosed in a heart-shaped wreath of forget-me-nots in two colors, while the book is illustrated with twelve duotone pictures by H. Putnam Hall. It is also embellished with many designs. At the bottom of each page is a motto or posy ring such as was in olden times engraved in engagement or wedding rings. "Inaugural Addresses," brought out in two volumes from the private plates of the Lakeside Press, contains the inaugural messages of the Presidents of the United States from Washington to Roosevelt, edited by John Vance Cheney. This series of patriotic classics will also contain a one-volume edition of the "Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin" in semi de luxe style.

PICK-UPS.

A DEAD ONE.

BREATHES there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said:
"My trade of late is getting bad;
I'll try another ten-inch ad."
If such there be, go mark him well;
For him no bank account shall swell,
No angel watch the golden stair
To welcome home the millionaire.
The man who never asks for trade
By local line or ad. displayed,
Cares more for rest than worldly gain,
And patronage but gives him pain.
Tread lightly, friends; let no rude sound
Disturb his solitude profound.
Here let him live in calm repose,
Unsought except by men he owes;
And when he dies, go plant him deep,
That naught may break his dreamless sleep;
Where no rude clamor may dispel
The quiet that he loved so well.
And that the world may know its loss,
Place on his grave a wreath of moss,
And on a stone above "Here lies
A chump who wouldn't advertise."

—M. L. Careye, in "The Spokesman."

ONE FORM OF BOOK-SMUGGLING.

A COUPLE of booksellers were recently exchanging stories, when the conversation turned upon the relative profit of the winter and summer seasons. In the course of the conversation one of the veterans was reminded of an incident that will strike a guilty note in the heart of many a book collector. Said he, "one of my most regular customers, a man well on in years, had a method of buying books that puzzled me for a long time. He'd drop in nearly every day during the winter and buy a book or two, remove the outside wrapper, and go off with it. Frequently he'd pay for a set of a dozen or more, but he wouldn't ever let me send them home for him. Instead, he would stop every day after business and go off with a volume under his arm, until the set was gone. Finally, one day I asked him why he did this. He looked sheepish for a moment, then chuckled. It seems he was a great book-collector. In his home every available space had long since been used for bookshelves—every shelf was full, and the surplus was piled up on the library chairs. His wife used to remonstrate with him—wanted him to sign the pledge—but he couldn't resist the temptation. So he fell into the habit of taking his new treasures home under his overcoat, and surreptitiously tucking them away before his wife could see them. This plan worked all right for the winter, but frequently of a hot summer afternoon, when his overcoat was packed away with mothballs, I'd see him, with longing eyes, go by on the other side. 'Perhaps,' said the dealer, with a laugh, 'there are others in the same fix, and that's one reason why more books are sold in winter than in summer.'"

THE "INSIDE" PRICE.

MARK TWAIN some time ago told this story at a dinner given to Tax Commissioner Charles Putzel at the Freundschaft Society clubhouse in New York:

"I saw Mr. Putzel twenty-five years ago in Putnam's book store. I went in there and asked for George H. Putnam, and handed in my card. A young man took it in but came back and said that Mr. Putnam was busy and could not see me. I had merely gone there on a social call, and started to leave. As I was going out my eye was attracted to a big, fat, interesting looking book. It was entitled 'The Invasion of England in the Fourteenth Century by the Friars.' I asked the price of it.

"'Four dollars,' was the answer.

"'What discount do you allow publishers?'

"'Forty per cent. off.'

"'Well,' I said, 'I am a publisher.'

"He put down the figures '40 per cent.' on the card.

"I said, 'What discount do you allow authors?'

"He said, 'Forty per cent.'

"'Well,' I said, 'I am an author. You can put that down.'

"'What discount do you allow the clergy?'

"He said, 'Twenty per cent.'

"'Well,' I said, 'I am one on the road.' So I took twenty per cent. for that.

"He put down the figures and never smiled once. Here I was working off all these scintillating brilliancies on him and not even a spark of recognition. I was almost in despair. I thought I would try him once more, so I said:

"'You know I am also a member of the Human Race. Would you allow me ten per cent. off for that?'

"He set that down—never smiled—so I said:

"'There is my card with my address on it. I have no money with me. Send the bill to my home at Hartford.'

"I picked up the book and was going away when he said:

"'Wait a minute; there is forty cents coming to you.'"

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

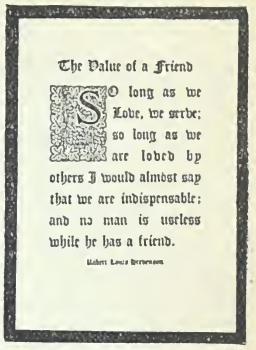
Many Booklovers



are attracted into bookstores by the display of our unique publications in the window. Many little items lead to big sales later on.

ONE little item is the DODGE LEAFLETS—an artistic series of motto cards, 5 x 7 inches, printed on a pasted antique bristol in two colors, and costing the trade only $3.00 per hundred.

ANOTHER small, but very attractive article, is our Inspiration Motto Series, Passepartoute form, selling for $10.00 per hundred.

POST card frames are keeping our factory exceedingly busy. They are made to hold any post card, and cost only $7.50 per gross.

DAINTY books in artistic bindings make attractive window displays, and brighten up the store. Why not send for our catalogue to-day?

Makers of Beautiful Books for Booklovers

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S new novel

is in its 200th thousand

Complaints are sometimes heard that novels are not selling nowadays. The reason is not far to seek. Few of the later novels have been really worth while; still fewer have that special charm which makes one reader say to another: "You must read it."

"CONISTON" is proving that the buyers and readers of fiction are more in number than ever. Its appeal to the market is enormous and irresistible.

Are YOU getting your share of this business?

A Small Outlay With Large Possibilities

Promote Your School Book Business

Booksellers can add to the volume of their business materially by developing carefully the sale of school books in their territory. While the margin of profit appears to be small it must be kept in mind that many schools, especially private schools, colleges and universities, order in quantities; the sale-season, though short, is "snappy" and there is a minimum of danger only in accumulating "dead" stock. When you make a customer for school books, be he the school principal or pupil, you have a customer for other supplies as well and very often you form business friendships with the "book-lovers" of the future.

To aid the bookseller in this branch of his business, we publish yearly an up-to-date "Educational List" containing the titles of current school books and their prices, together with a classified index of subjects. This catalogue we supply at a very low rate in quantities with the dealer's own imprint on front page—cheap enough to warrant any bookseller distributing it among all the educational institutions in his territory.

To the Booktrade

We take pleasure in announcing a new issue of WHITAKER'S REFERENCE CATALOGUE, 1906, which is to be ready for delivery in July. It will consist, as in the last (1902) edition, of two strongly bound volumes. The complete or abridged list of nearly every British publisher of note will be found in the new edition, so that almost every book now in print and on sale in England will be included in the Index. In some form or other every book in the Catalogue is indexed. As a rule the subject of the book is given, but in cases where it appears necessary, books are indexed under the three headings of Title, Subject, and Author's name. The index of the last edition extended to 800 pages, containing more than 130,000 references. As the edition is limited we solicit early orders from booksellers, especially from those dealers who have had the earlier issues of this trade tool and appreciate its value.

The price of the set, 2 volumes, bound in half leather, is $5.00.

A Rock in the Baltic

"Has made history in the world of literature."—Philadelphia North American.

A GREAT NOVEL OF ACTION AND MYSTERY

By ROBERT BARR

Leads In Sales Everywhere

Miss Dorothy Amhurst, the famed Bar Harbor beauty, who attracted considerable notice through her unexpected inheritance of $15,000,000 and her subsequent strange disappearance, has returned to America, and the account of her adventures during the several months of her absence is on a par with an Arabian Night's tale for absorbing interest and incredible episode.

Her absence was connected with the baffling mystery surrounding the kidnapping of Prince Lermontoff, of Russia, and the vanishing of Alan Drummond, of His British Majesty's navy. Although the whole matter has not heretofore been made public, it is now set forth in vivid, interest-compelling fashion by Robert Barr, the great English novelist, in his latest, best novel, "A Rock in the Baltic."

"A Rock in the Baltic" is a bit of epoch-making fiction that will be in everybody's library within three months of its publication.

Reports from all sections of the country place this fine book at the head of best-selling books.

Two Famous Novels Under This System for Less than the Former Price of One

Special editions of these famous books are made exclusively for our selling agents, one in each city.

Progressive merchants will readily see the advertising feature of offering a $1.50 prominent author's latest book for only 50 cents, and by having the exclusive sale, its trade drawing feature. All buyers must call at the store having the exclusive sale. THIS BRINGS IN THE CUSTOMERS WHO HAVE BEEN IN THE HABIT OF PURCHASING ELSEWHERE. A new book every month under this system should make the store known as the best price-saving mart throughout the merchant's territory contracting for this exclusive feature.

CONTRACTS FOR SPECIAL EDITIONS and exclusive selling rights in each city not contracted for at this writing are now being made by
